

About Abriendo Caminos

From 2016-2020, through the Abriendo Caminos/Opening Pathways for Students of Color into the Teaching Profession: Giving Back to the Community through Teaching project, it was our pleasure to serve our PK-12 and higher education students and families here in southern Nevada. We are grateful to our collaborating teachers, our partner schools, the district (especially, academic services, research, grants, and equity and diversity education divisions), our key higher education partners (TUN, NSC, CSN), and our many, many, many community education partners and volunteers. We appreciate the opportunity provided by the Great Teaching and Learning Fund (GTLF), through the Nevada Department of Education (NDE), to actualize this project. We look forward to sustaining and growing these collaborations and partnerships, as well as to building and nurturing new ones.

Through the UNLV College of Education Center for Multicultural Education we continue to provide critical transformative multicultural educational services dedicated to the personal and academic success of students from historically/currently minoritized and marginalized communities/groups.

As resources for students, families, educators, and other education stakeholders, we will continue to maintain the Abriendo Caminos/Opening Pathways for Students of Color into the Teaching Profession: Giving Back to the Community through Teaching project components of this website.
